Fiesta Days Parade Thrills Thousands

BY JIM ARKISON

Blessed by beautiful weather, Yorba Linda's eighth birthday of incorporation as a city, was marked in gala fashion last Saturday with a Fiesta Days Parade and related activities.

Preparations began in the early morning and by 8 a.m. many parade participants and booth caretakers had enjoyed breakfast at the Woman's Club and were well fortified for the day's endeavors.

By 9 a.m. Main Street was jumping with people getting the booths ready and selecting choice locations to view the parade.

The 80 plus entries stepped off at Plumosa and Avolinda promptly at 10 a.m. the entire route was solidly packed with Yorba Linda residents and hundreds of our of town visitors.

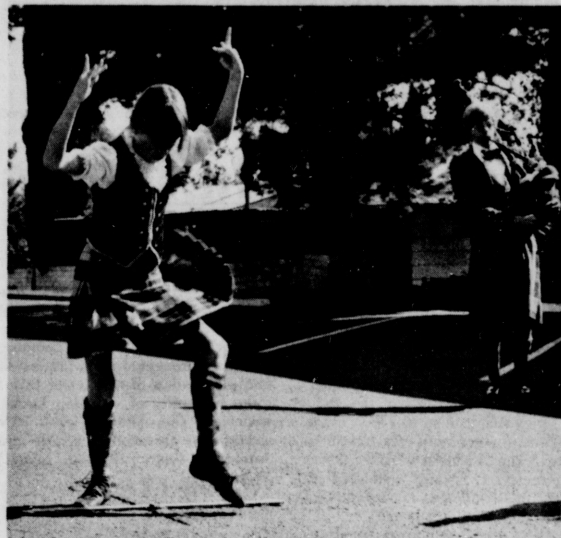

It took just about an hour for the parade to pass a given spot and during that time viewers were treated to a delightful panorama of floats, bands, marching groups, equestrians, old vintage vehicles, novelty entries and much more.

Unlike most parades, the local one was non-competitive and that fact lent a certain feeling of relaxation and enjoyment for the participants who exhibited this in their excitement and enthusiasm at being a part of the community event.

One of the highlights was the large contingents of children and youth marching groups which stretched out in lengthy blocks of two's, four's and other varied combinations.

Waves of recognition and pleased smiles were displayed by the

Rancher Killed In Freak Accident

Services for Arnold A. Pegel, a native of Anaheim, who at one time attended school in Placentia, were held Monday following a freak electrical accident in which both Pegel and Roberto Martinez Sanchez, 20, of Placentia were killed.

The two men were farming on a plot of ground in Anaheim, near La Palma and Tustin Avenues, preparing to plant strawberries, when a cutter on the tractor Pegel was driving made contact with a wire which hit a high voltage line.

Pegel was killed instantly and Sanchez was apparently walking in back of the tractor. When Sanchez attempted to save Pegel and pull him from the tractor, Sanchez also was killed.

The line carried 12,000 volts of electricity.

Pegel, 61, currently resided in Yorba Linda and was well known in this area as a farmer and a citizen interested in civic affairs.

He, along with his two brothers, were raised on the Pegel ranch where Autonetics now stands. One of the brothers, Carl Pegel, father of Walter Pegel, well known in Placentia, died three years ago. The surviving brother is Emil Pegel of Buena Park.

Pegel, who had lived in Yorba Linda for six years, had farmed all his life. His Arnold's Corn Shack was a familiar landmark on State College Boulevard, between Commonwealth and Orangethorpe Avenues. He frequently ate lunch at the restaurants along Placentia's Santa Fe Street and assisted with Mexican American activities in the area.

The accident that took the two lives occurred last Tuesday.

Services for Pegel were held Monday at Waverly Church at Fairhaven Memorial Park, Santa Ana. Officiating was Rev. Otto Nielsen of the Messiah Lutheran Church of Yorba Linda with burial at Fairhaven Memorial Park.

Surviving the well known rancher are his widow Anita of the home; three daughters, Jo Ann Proud of Anaheim; Catherine Johnson of Hawaii and Marion Pegel of Corona Del Mar; one son, Edward of Fullerton; brother Emil, of Buena Park and four grandsons.

Hilgenfeld Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

Services for Sanchez will be held in Mexico, Daly and Bartel Mortuary in Anaheim reports.

Schools OK In Quakes

Yorba Linda School District schools all meet Field Act standards, set in 1933, and no action needs to be taken, according to J. Elton Patridge, deputy superintendent.

Patridge made the statement after Wilson Riles, state superintendent of public instruction, recommended that districts "should immediately abandon or remodel school buildings not meeting Field Act standards."

His recommendation came on the heels of earthquakes in Oroville this year and in San Fernando in 1971. Riles notified all county and school district officials in the state of his recommendation.

Patridge said all local schools meet Field Act standards and pointed out that the oldest school, the Nixon, was built in 1952.

The district does not have any administrative buildings that require attention. Officials recently moved out of the Casa Loma Avenue offices into the new Linda Vista School on Ohio Street. The former office was earthquake safe.

A full page of photos depicting Fiesta Days Parade highlights and activities at the booths is published in this edition on Page 5. Additional pictures will be printed in succeeding editions. For those who may be pictured and desire additional copies of the paper a supply will be available at the Star offices, 4861 Main Street.

Parks-Recreation Commission OK'd

The Yorba Linda City Council Monday night passed unanimously an ordinance establishing a parks and recreation commission.

As specified in the ordinance, the commission will advise city council and staff and serve as an intermediary between the city and the public on matters having to do with parks and recreation.

Under the ordinance, the commission will consist of five members, plus such ex-officio members as the city council may designate, including the parks and recreation commissioner.

Members, appointed by the mayor with the approval of the city council, will normally serve four years, without salary.

Noting that there had been no corresponding increase in parks and recreation staff despite recent growth of the city, City Administrator Arthur C. Simonian endorsed adoption of the ordinance.

"We foresee eventual creation of a full-time parks and recreation staff," Simonian added.

Councilman Whit Cromwell at first opposed the ordinance, saying that he would wish such a move not be made until after budget hearings next year, since the commission might entail additional cost to the city.

Simonian replied however, that positions on the commission could not be filled for several months in any case, and that additional expense during the remainder of the current budget year would be slight.

In other action, the city council voted not to purchase from the Orange County tax collector's office a 13,000 sq. ft. parcel of land on Bastanchury west of Rose Drive. Simonian recommended against the purchase, noting that the city master plan showed no public use for it.

The property, which was acquired by the county for taxes, had been offered to the city for a minimum-bid figure of $1000.

Taken under consideration by the city council and staff were proposals by Mayor Carolyn P. Ewing and Councilman Rudolph A. Castro.

Explaining that she had been approached by a member of a homeowners' group with complaints of over-night, on-street parking of recreational vehicles, Ewing asked staff to investigate the possibility of adopting an ordinance forbidding such parking on city streets.

Fullerton already has such an ordinance.

Councilman Castro, pointing out lack of general public attendance at city council meetings, suggested the council consider meeting at other locations from time to time, where the public might more conveniently attend.

Although the possibility of using private homes was not ruled out, Castro said that he was thinking more in terms of churches and other semi-public buildings.

Oil Well Fencing Adequate, But...

In the aftermath of the tragic death of a young boy playing on an oil well in Placentia the Yorba Linda City Council requested staff to investigate oil well fencing requirements.

City Administrator Art Simonian reported back last week that all oil well fence requirements are being met by the owners. He said that information had been given to him by Building Official Ivan Smith.

As of January 28 this year there was a total of 252 oil wells within the city. They are checked at least once a year for compliance with the city code by the building department.

The fencing section of the city code requires oil wells to be "enclosed by a steel chain link fence not less than six feet in height and, in addition, not having less than three strands of barbed wire sloping outward at approximately a 45 degree angle and for 18 inches from the top of the fence. There shall be no aperture below such fence greater than four inches."

Placentia has similar requirements and plans no new requirements nor changes the city has been informed.

Placentia officials indicated, and Simonian's report appeared to agree, that even if fence requirements were raised, if children wanted to enter badly enough they would find a way.

Simonian's report said that "it should be noted that the well at which the young boy was fatally injured is being totally enclosed."

Simonian concluded his report with the statement that "the fencing requirements that the City maintains appears to be adequate. Regardless of fence height children can gain access."

COSTUME PARADE--Children from the Parks and Recreation Department amused folks along Main Street last week as they paraded in their Halloween costumes. Danny Berger, 4½, and Hollie Pender, 3, as Mickey and Minnie Mouse, led the 25 children. Before showing off their costumes they enjoyed a Halloween Party. The children are enrolled in Tiny Tots classes sponsored by the Recreation Department.

"AND GROWS, AND GROWS..."--Probably every pupil at the Mabel Paine School took part in the Fiesta Days Parade as, grade by grade, they announced "America Grows, and Grows," ad infinitum to the delight of the crowds watching the spectacle.

Growth Imminent; So Are Problems

BY JIM ARKISON

Last week Yorba Linda celebrated its eighth birthday, having been incorporated in 1967. As significant as that date was, one of equal importance may have occurred several days ago.

Two pending litigations over the annexation of the Dominguez Ranch have been dropped thus opening the door to the projected growth of the city to the anticipated population count of 55,000 by the year 1990. Today's estimated head count is 20,700.

It will take more annexations to the east to expand the city limits to accommodate the expected thousands of more families. The Dominguez Ranch annexation, including a portion of the Upper K Ranch, makes much of the area contiguous, the key to future annexations.

Hundreds of acres at a time are coming into the city and the prospects are that future annexations will bring in thousands of acres in single actions.

Maintaining its image as a so-called "bedroom community", it is expected that most of the development will be residential. Undoubtedly, there would be some commercial areas to accommodate the new families but there has been no indication that anyone desires industrial or manufacturing development.

Residential density has to be determined. As much land as possible will be devoted to single family zoning. But city officials will have to deal with some developers who prefer to put hard-to-get money into apartments and condominiums.

There is a side to this growth that will need as much attention as zoning. It is the increase in services.

Facing city fathers are the accompanying problems of increased police protection. They will have to answer the question of adequate fire protection. Construction and maintenance of streets, illumination, collection of trash, demands for sufficient recreation and park areas, are subjects which will merit serious consideration.

Hovering over all of this is the method of funding everything that will have to be done. Can the city continue to function properly without levying a property tax?

These are not new questions for elected city officials, appointed boards and commissions, not those on the city staff. The answers and alternatives are being pondered almost on a daily basis.

Growth not only poses problems for the city. The school district will be compelled to meet the challenge of the influx of thousands of school age children at all levels.

The projection of population for Yorba Linda could well be the determining factor in the discussions on mergers, annexations or unification of school districts.

How imminent is growth now that the way has been cleared for enlargement of the city?

One example is the residential home building firm of C. Michael, Inc. This company has master planned the development of the Dominguez Ranch area. That plan calls for 1,044 single family, estate size home, townhomes, condominiums and zero lot line homes in a setting of lakes and extensive green-belts.

It is almost certain that this company and other developers are eyeing further annexations areas. Yorba Linda is one of the few Orange County or, for that matter, Southern California areas with such a wealth of open land available for development.

This city appears to have a unique opportunity. It can profit by the mistakes of other communities who were not expanded hurriedly and have lived to regret the experience.

Yorba Linda can also benefit from the cities which grew more leisurely and had time to plan wisely and develop in an orderly fashion.

MORE COMING—Residential construction is going on in Yorba Linda at a lively pace but what is happening now may be only a small indication of what lies ahead.

Letters To The Editor

In Appreciation

Dear Sir:

Agriculture students of Room 22 wish to express their sincere thank you to Albert Wilsey of A and B Materials for his generous donation of two dump truck loads of compost and three cubic yards of top soil.

Many thanks also to Yorba Linda Rentals for donation of a tractor to plow the student farm. Great appreciation is also extended to individuals of the community for their donation of manure.

All of these generous donations insure better crop yields and allow innovative programs to become a reality.

Very truly,

Jack Horn

Commendation

Dear Editor:

While visiting in Yorba Linda recently a large eucalyptus tree caught fire on the golf course and a golfer reported it to me.

While my grandson was getting a hose I called the fire department. I had hardly hung up the phone when the "yellow" fire car came and two fire engines followed him.

I was terribly impressed by such prompt response as they were not sure of the exact location of the tree on the course. They are all to be commended for their fast action and courtesy.

Dear Gertrude and Members of Unit #277:

Thank you so very much for your check in the amount of $200 which will be used to purchase a Stimulator for the relief of pain. This is a much needed item, as it makes the patients more comfortable without the use of drugs. It is particularly valuable for use by Spinal Cord Injury patients.

We do appreciate the help you receive from the school children of Placentia. How good it is that they can learn that others have needs and that everyone can do something for others to make a better world.

Thanks so much for remembering our needs here at Long Beach VA Hospital. Without Units such as yours, our work here would be much curtailed.

Sincerely,
Ruth Curtis

[Editor's Note: Mrs. Floy Denney, Auxiliary press chairman, requested the publication of this letter to let "the people of Yorba Linda, especially the children, know how grateful we are for their efforts and interest in this worthwhile project.]

Worried Lady

Dear Editor

I am concerned for the safety of school children as well as the other citizens of the community. There is an immediate traffic danger at the corner of South Ohio and Mountain View. This is a completely blind corner when approaching from the east, heading west on Mountain View.

To make matters worse this is a school bus stop with crowds of children morning and afternoon. It seems to me that the City Council should be made aware of such a hazard and take action to correct it before someone is seriously injured.

Thank you,
Karen Payne

Business Signs

To The Editor

I am a silent member of the public. I like business signs. Signs tell me where to go to save my energy. If I go along the street in Yorba Linda or in any other city; Placentia, Brea, Anaheim, Fullerton, Orange or Santa Ana or Costa Mesa, I do not see signs that are offensive. Signs help me.

There seems to be a feeling by a part of the public and reflected by the City Council, that business signs are objectionable. You, the silent public, have to correct the wrong impression. You like signs.

You want business houses to be profitable and do lots of trade. You want the one percent mercantile tax to be paid to Yorba Linda. The city must have money. If you eliminate business signs or make them inconspicuous so they are not effective to draw customers, you hurt the public, you could make a property tax inevitable in Yorba Linda.

Why not tell the City Council to take another look at its overlay restrictive sign ordinance? Why not use balanced reason when we meet with City Council the night of the 17th?

by Jim Arkison

There is one thing certain about Yorba Linda. A goodly portion of the population is comprised of school age youngsters. Also for sure is that they belong to a lot of different organizations. And, they love to be in a parade.

I learned those facts while watching the Fiesta Days Parade last Saturday. As evidence I call attention to the Girl Scouts, Brownies, Boy Scouts, Camp Fire Girls, Indian Guides and Indian Maidens, just to name a few.

At second thought I'm not quite sure that the Indian Guides qualify strictly as a youth group. It seemed to me that they had as many adults as boys still doing what we'd all probably like to do but won't admit, playing the childhood game of being an Indian.

I don't mean that to be critical of the adults. I think that the tribute they pay through the boy and girl organizations is a long overdue one for the people the settlers of this nation treated so shabbily.

Perhaps the floats we'll see in person or on TV in the Rose Parade on New Year's Day will be prettier and certainly much more expensive to make than the ones in the local parade but it was easy to see that every float last Saturday was the result of a lot of work and effort by those who put them together.

Personally, the homemade float was much more impressive because of what it represented. I also liked the idea of grouping all the floats on Main Street after the parade so everyone could get a closer look and really admire them.

I've been to many high school band competition parades and have seen the tension and aggravation which goes along with them, not only for the band members but for the supporting booster groups of parents.

Without any competition in Saturday's spectacular, the marching was still precise and the music still excellent. In fact, being able to be relaxed while marching and playing, the bands were probably better than had they competed.

I especially enjoyed the Mabel Paine School marching group with the theme of "America Grows, and Grows, and Grows." The grade by grade procession with the children getting bigger and bigger was very effective.

When I arrived in town about 8 a.m. many of the booths were being put up in their allotted spaces and food and articles being unloaded. Minute by minute the pace quickened and there was a flurry of last minute preparations when the call came to clear the street of all cars.

The Cloverleaf 4-H booth outside the Star office had problems, as did some of the others. Their booth had to battle a utility pole and a mail box. I hope they overcame the obstacles.

Every one who had the opportunity to participate or enjoy the activities owes a vote of thanks to the Yorba Linda Service League which annually sponsors Fiesta Days.

It is a tremendous undertaking for one rather small group and they did a superb job.

TROY HIGH SCHOOL'S—participation in the Fiesta Days Parade drew loud cheers from students and parents of Yorba Linda connected with the school. In fact, all the school bands and drill teams had their share of supporters in the parade viewers.

marchers as they recognized, parents, relatives and friends watching them. The same emotions were exhibited by the viewers.

High school and junior high bands and their drill teams provided the music and marching expertise for the parade and each entry had large numbers of supporters cheering them all the way.

Much of the transportation for non-walking paraders was furnished by vintage cars causing grandfathers and dads to tell the grandchildren and children to point to the Model A's and Model T's with the proud statement: "I used to have one of those when I was young."

Floats which carried out the theme of "Sweet Land of Liberty" to denote the Bicentennial celebration used many varied ideas to convey the message. Following the parade all the floats gathered on Main Street for closer viewing.

Following Smokey the Bear, riding a Forest Service truck, were two banner carriers displaying the word "OLE" which signified the end of the parade. All agreed that the sign was a benediction to an extra fine event.

As soon as the parade ended the crowds melded into a huge of practically wall-to-wall people who visited the approximately 50 booths stretching along both sides of Main Street.

The booths featured foods and beverages of all kinds plus articles and games. They were busy well into the afternoon and hopefully each of them was successful in raising funds for their favorite charities and projects.

City officials gathered in City Hall after the parade to meet and greet citizens. The City Council members rested gratefully after walking the entire distance of the parade.

Fiesta Days is an annual project of the Yorba Linda Service League and members were busy accepting congratulations for a job well done.

He is survived by two sons, Wayne of Fullerton and Marty of Chino; also by four grandchildren.

WHO ARE THEY? was the question frequently asked as the new girl's club entered this cute float in the Fiesta Days Parade. For details on the club see the article on Page 7 of this edition.

EASY MONEY--was the goal of youngsters at the Ring Toss game booth as they paid hard earned money to try and circle coins or hit the jackpot by ringing the middle post which had a dollar bill wrapped around it.

HORSE TALES

by JOAN JOHNSON

STRONGYLUS VULGARIS Part 4

How long must treatment continue?—Regular deworming at six to eight week intervals must be continued for at least a year, usually much longer, before a heavily infected herd and premises can be reasonably cleansed.

Two reasons—S. vulgaris larvae normally migrate in the animal's body six to eight months with some remaining much longer before returning to the intestine where they may be destroyed by medication.

Second, while most strongyle eggs and larvae do not remain viable on the ground for more than two months, some may survive much longer.

The problem of strongyle control must be regarded as a continuous one—a sustained rather than a periodic effort. The true parasite load can only be determined by a series of microscopic fecal examinations to determine the number of eggs present.

What horses to treat?—All horses, mules and donkeys on the premises must be treated. All new arrivals should be de-wormed before they are placed in areas where their droppings might contaminate paddocks or grazing areas.

A pet pony or donkey or any other horse on the premises, not included in the regular treatment schedule, will continue as a liberal source of worm egg contamination and defeat the whole purpose of the program.

It is a fact that one horse with a 2,000 egg count per gram of feces (not an uncommon load) discharges 25,000,000 eggs per day. The consequences of missing a horse or two in treatment is obvious.

When to treat foals?—Larval migration from the time they are swallowed by the foal until they reach maturity in the intestine requires about six months. Thus foals under six months of age harbor the parasite in migratory phase—not in the gut.

Consequently, medicating a foal for the removal of adult S. vulgaris much before he is six months old is useless because he has none. Migratory larvae are not affected by usual drug treatments.

The only safeguard for the foal is to insure that his complete environment, including his dam, is free from eggs and larvae.

Evaluating effectiveness of a program.—Microscopic fecal examination should be made periodically to check on the effectiveness of drugs being used and to determine the over-all effectiveness of the program.

Sampling just prior to treatment will indicate the level of parasitism. A second sampling a week or two after treatment will indicate the efficacy of the drug.

Nestande At Fairmont

Fairmont Elementary School was recently honored on two occasions by visits from Assemblyman Bruce Nestande.

Nestande first addressed the general meeting of the Parent Teachers Organization, and then returned to meet with the faculty and students.

It was a rewarding experience for the students to be able to meet with a representative of the State government and express their opinions on various issues.

The faculty also had a chance to voice their opinions on issues concerning education.

"Gypsy" On CSUF Stage

The legendary first lady of the world of burlesque, Gypsy Rose Lee, and the mother who propelled her to fame are the subjects for "Gypsy," which plays Nov. 6-9, 11-16, in the Little Theater at California State University, Fullerton.

Bill Tynes, Placentia, is a member of the cast.

An unprecedented advance sale of tickets for the show has resulted in sellouts for all Friday, Saturday and Sunday performances. However, tickets for Thursday's opening night performance (Nov. 6) are still available, as are those for showings Tuesday-Thursday (Nov. 11-13). Patrons planning to attend "Gypsy" are advised to make plans as soon as possible to avoid disappointment. The box office is open weekdays from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. and 1½ hours before a scheduled evening performance.

"Gypsy" is a song and dance odyssey about Rose Louise Hovick, who went from tank-town vaudeville to the tinselled gaudiness of Minsky burlesque and continued on to become the international celebrity, Gypsy Rose Lee.

Park Land In Court

A court hearing on an additional 11 acres, to be included in Tri-City Park, under the auspices of Placentia, Fullerton, Brea and Orange County, will be heard at 9 a.m. Thursday, November 20 in Superior Court in Santa Ana.

The additional acreage is in trust of heirs of the Tuffree estate and is now under condemnation to be added to the park. There are reportedly 36 heirs to the Tuffree property.

The lake and grounds of Tri-City Park, containing Lake Placentia, are located at the northwest corner of Placentia, bounding on the three cities.

Firestone

GUARANTEED DLC-100 RETREADS GUARANTEED LIKE NEW TIRES

If a newly retreaded passenger tire bearing Firestone's medallion and shop identification becomes unserviceable in normal use for any reason other than road hazard damage, ANY Firestone dealer or store in the United States or Canada will replace it at NO CHARGE, providing claim is made by original purchaser before the new tread applied becomes more than 20% worn. In all other cases in accordance with the terms of our printed guarantee including ROAD HAZARD, purchaser will be required to pay ONLY for the new tread design depth worn off, based on the then current adjustment price (approximate national average selling price).
